MRS. GODBEE'S STORY TOLD ON THE STAND

Dramatic Story of Defendant in Famous Case Holds Attention of Jurors and Spectators in Court

Mrs. Godbee took the witness stand in her own behalf late yesterday afternoon and made a remarkable statement that held the crowded court-room breathless. She told of extreme cruelty to which she said she had been subjected by Godbee and cited instances when, she declared, he had beaten, choked and otherwise mistreated her. She said that Godbee had killed her younger brother during their early married life and that she had furnished the money with which he earned an acquittal before a jury by proving self defense. She stated that Godbee had dissipated her fortune and tricked her out of valuable property inherited from her mother and father.

Beginning with her father's death in 1871, the woman told of her marriage less than a month later to her husband who had purchased the mercantile business of her father in Perkins county. Soon after the ceremony, the witness said, her husband began to obtain from her the property which she had inherited at her father's death.

Year by year she went through her life, citing alleged instances of abuse which she said had gradually dissipated her share of her inheritance and the property which she later acquired at her mother's death. She stated her whole life, telling of instances where, she said, Godbee had plotted against her, until at the time she killed him he was in possession of her property.

DECLARES HUSBAND CRUEL. Godbee killed her brother, she said, two hours after he had killed her mother one morning to go to the post-office in Perkins, which he conducted, and left her with a promise to take seriously anything the youth said. She declared that on one occasion he had compelled her to work at a housekeeper's wage, $10 a month, in a hotel in Milton bought with her money. She said that on one occasion she had awakened in the night to find Godbee bending over her with a gun in his hands. On another he choked her, she said, and she told of an alleged attempt of the dead man to install a negro woman in her home over her protests.

The three children were the only common children between Mrs. Godbee and her husband during the married portion of her married life, she said. She told of several separations, following her reconciliations on account of these lies.

HER FRIENDS SHOCKED. Mrs. Godbee told of moving to Atlanta several years ago. They lived in a house at 318 Peachtree street, she told the jury.

It was a dilapidated place, and previously had been occupied by dissipated people. My friends came from Milton; they were shocked at my surroundings.

The week after we took up our residence there Mrs. McKinnon, who lived across the street, came over and told me that at the house had borne a vile reputation, she had suspected me until she learned who I was. Often we were forced to live on the street.

I conferred with friends about returning home. They prevailed upon Judge Godbee to come to an agreement with me. One day when I told him I was going home, Mr. Godbee immediately went uptown and initiated divorce proceedings. I told him that I would not consent the suit if he would concede to me the custody of the children.

"We became reconciled, however, before the case came to a trial and returned to Milton. When he got back here Mr. Godbee became dangerously addicted to the use of morphine. He constantly made threats. My sons advised me to leave him. Finally he notified me that he would renew his divorce suit. He later asked me to institute the proceedings this time."

Mrs. Godbee told of consulting a lawyer to take preliminary steps toward a legal separation. She said that a number of charges embodied in her petition by her lawyer were too severe for Mr. Godbee, and that she had had him strike them out so as to prevent subsequent peace and happiness.

APART FOR MONTHS. "Notwithstanding this," she said, "he continued to annoy me. I asked him to write me no letters but to send any communication he would have through my lawyers. He failed to comply with this request.

"Once, on a trip to Augusta, he followed me and shadowed me over the streets in a cab. After that, there was a period of peace. For months we knew nothing of each other. Then, one day, Mr. Davis of Augusta, came to me and told me that Judge Godbee loved me more than he loved life itself. On account of the children, I consented to another reunion.

Mrs. Godbee told that her former husband had sent their daughter, Sarah, to school as agreed in a contract signed upon their later separation. She then told of Judge Godbee's marriage to his third wife. She told her children, she said, upon their father's return to Milton, to treat him and his new wife as nicely as possible.

"For even the mere fact that she was his wife made her worthy of respect and honor," she said.

"When our eyes met, his face blanched white as a sheet. He wheeled around, and when I left for the postoffice that morning I did not intend to hurt Judge Godbee. I carried my pistol merely for protection. As I was writing at a desk in the office, I suddenly glanced up to see Judge Godbee near me.

ARMED FOR PROTECTION. "Speaking of the tragedy," Mrs. Godbee said, "I'll swear to you, gentlemen, that when I left for the postoffice that morning I did not intend to hurt Judge Godbee. I carried my pistol merely for protection. As I was writing at a desk in the office, I suddenly glanced up to see Judge Godbee near me.

REMEMBER ONLY SHOOTING. "I remember shooting—that's all. It was done to keep him from shooting me. I don't know how many shots I fired. When I came to myself, my pistol wouldn't shoot any more. I don't recall shooting the woman—I never intended to. The only way she could have been struck was by getting within range of the bullets as she went out through the door.

"Gentlemen, I had never been for this country and from England to appear in Atlanta in connection with the office of the Music Festival association to meet a successor to Mr. Percy J. Starnes.

THEATER-OPENING NIGHT AT PIEDMONT ON MONDAY

Coming of Oysters and Theatrical Season to Be Marked by Venetian Gaieties

With a five-piece orchestra in attendance and two operatic stars on the program, the Piedmont hotel will herald the opening of the hotel's oyster season, that has been delayed owing to the extremely hot weather during the early part of the first "31" month.

As was the case when the Piedmont opened the way for the New Year's celebration, guests in order to secure a place during the festivities, must first apply for table reservations. These can be had on application to Assistant Restaurant Manager, R. Frank Taylor, or to the steward, E. R. J. Fiechell. No persons will be admitted without a card.

The new orchestra that makes its bow during the first time Monday evening comes here from the east and is one of the best that has been procured. It is composed entirely of males, but is not the same one that was here last year.

It is the intention of the management to make the occasion an exposition of the carnival spirit of old Venice and those who had tables on the last day of December, 1912, know better what to expect than most others.

Attractive novelties will be placed at every table. Horse, balls and other making devices of every description will be distributed to assist in making the event a merry and delightful one.

FREDERICK HALL PLAYS ORGAN HERE ON SUNDAY

Frederick Hall, organist of historic Christ church, Philadelphia, and one of the best known choir masters of that city, is in Atlanta, and will be the soloist at the free organ concert Sunday afternoon at the auditorium, under Music Festival association auspices. Mr. Hall is perhaps the best known organist in Philadelphia, and is arranging a brilliant program for his Atlanta appearance.

Mr. Hill is one of the organists who have come from various parts of this country and from England to appear in Atlanta in connection with the office of the Music Festival association to meet a successor to Mr. Percy J. Starnes.

ELDERLY PEOPLE NEED PODOLAX

When folks get along in years, their daily life and their daily habits are not so active as they used to be. The body is apt to "let down" somewhat and feel that it is entitled to a well-earned rest. But it's not so; you mustn't permit it. Most important of all keep your liver working right up to the mark—and do it with a gentleness but positive stimulant like PODOLAX—not with mere physics, (which don't touch the liver at all) nor, on the other hand, with dangerous calomel or violent saline purgatives. Your bowels no longer have the elasticity of youth, they can't recover quickly enough from the exhaustion which violent purgatives are certain to cause. PODOLAX is particularly fine for elderly people because it increases the flow of the liver's secretions and thus enables the liver to HELP ITSELF—naturally, healthfully, positively. You'll like PODOLAX; it will give a new edge to your appetite, new tone to your stomach and splendid regularity to your daily habits. Acne attacks the glandular structure of the skin, more particularly those tiny glands that secrete fat. And it is here that S. S. S., the famous blood purifier is most active in its influence. There is one ingredient in S. S. S. the purpose of which it is to stimulate the cells in the tissues that they select from the blood the nutriment that makes new skin and thus eliminates all irritants, acids and parasites that inflame the glands. There is a natural tendency of the fine network of blood vessels in the skin to throw off impurities, but where a persistent inflammatory process has invaded the skin, the

SUPPOSED VICTIM OF MURDER IS LIVING

Mrs. Lena Janin Not Woman Whose Mutilated Body Was Found in Hudson River

(By Associated Press.)
HAYASA, Sept. 12.—Mrs. Lena Janin, who was supposed to have been murdered in New York, her body cut up and thrown into the Hudson river, and Vincent Planelis, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the case, were found living in a house in Havana street here.

The couple said they had lived together in New York, and had sailed for Havana ten days ago after Planelis had had a dispute with Captain Janin, and had a fight with the captain, over the question of the Janins obtaining a divorce.

Havana Woman Put End to One Theory

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Discovery in Havana of Mrs. Janin's body, and the fact that she was living in Havana, has put an end to the theory that she was the victim of a murder. The discovery of the body, which was found in the Hudson river, was made by a fisherman, and the body was found in a state of decomposition. HOURS ARE FEWER, WAGES MORE FOR LABOR IN U. S.

Bakers Have Been the Most Fortunate, Statistics for Six Years Show

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—There was a steady increase in the scale of wages paid to labor in this country in the past six years, and this was accompanied in the face of a steady reduction in the working hours of labor. Statistics published today by the department of labor indicate that the increase in wages has been accompanied by a corresponding decrease in the number of hours worked. The figures are based on comparisons of wages and working conditions in various industries throughout the United States from 1907 to 1912.

WOULD START CAMPAIGN AGAINST HOG CHOLERA

U. S. Agricultural Department
Has Discovered Serum That Will Prevent It

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Inauguration of a country-wide campaign to eliminate or control hog cholera is urged by a special report today issued by the bureau of animal industry, which estimates that during the past year about $10,000,000 worth of hogs were lost to the disease. After experimenting for more than twenty years the department of agriculture has discovered a serum which will prevent the disease and which now is being distributed to thirty states.

FEDERAL GRAND JURY TO PROBE NOBLEMAN'S ACTS

Allegations of Landreus Against Austrian Prince to Be Investigated

(By Associated Press.)
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 12.—Coinciding with the arrival from Washington of a warrant for the deportation of Mrs. Wm. Melcher, a Vienna landreus, who charges against Prince Stanislaw Melcher, Austrian nobleman and soldier, and federal officers, a grand jury was announced that a United States grand jury investigation of the case would be begun here today. Prince Melcher is now in Japan with his wife, a Los Angeles landreus, and Mrs. Melcher, admitted they had been served grand jury subpoenas. The warrant for Mrs. Melcher's deportation will not be served pending results of the grand jury inquiry.

WILSON NOW AT HOME
AT CORNISH, N. H.

Trip to Summer White House
Was Reminiscent of Campaign Days

(By Associated Press.)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 12.—President Wilson passed through here this morning en route to the summer White House at Cornish, N. H. The trip was reminiscent of campaign days, for not only did the president ride on the private car, but he was accompanied by Secretary McAdoo, the treasury secretary, Field McPherson, third assistant secretary of state, all of whom were Mr. Wilson's traveling companions in previous days.

A SILENT OCCASION.
The president's train at New Haven and continued to Beverly, Mass., where they will enter today with Colonel E. A. House, intimate friend of President Wilson. They will talk over the Boston collector's ledger and two federal appointments in Massachusetts. Some of the Massachusetts leaders have been urging that federal appointments be deferred until after the gubernatorial election, so as to avoid the possibility of sectional strain. In the Democratic ranks, the president probably will discuss this when he gets back to Washington.

REMARKS OF THE SIGNAL CORPS IN SHERMAN'S ARMY.

It was from that station that General Sherman's famous message to General Grant at Rome was sent: "Hold the fort. I'm coming." Confederate occupied the mountain first, when John's army was retreating into Atlanta before Sherman's hosts. And when the Federals captured it, they continued to use as a commanding signal station for all the surrounding country. Two members of the signal corps of the Union army who served through the three harrowing days of war will conduct the ceremony Saturday on top of Kennesaw mountain and messages of good will and peace will be exchanged from there over the land.

Government Experts Declare That Crop Is Not Heavy, but Is Sufficient

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—While potatoes will not be a crop in the United States this year consumers need not fear that there will not be enough to meet demand. In a special report today on the potato outlook, J. C. Corbett, of the department of agriculture, declared that while the total harvest will be less than last year, it will be sufficient to supply normal needs. The shrinkage in this year's crop is ascribed to the heavy loss of crop from last season, the low prices and the general demoralization of the potato trade last autumn, which caused a reduction in acreage.

In a special report today on the potato outlook, J. C. Corbett, of the department of agriculture, declared that while the total harvest will be less than last year, it will be sufficient to supply normal needs. The shrinkage in this year's crop is ascribed to the heavy loss of crop from last season, the low prices and the general demoralization of the potato trade last autumn, which caused a reduction in acreage.

WHITE LONGSHOREMEN JOIN STRIKE BY BLACKS

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 12.—All members of the white longshoremen's union used work this morning to enforce the demands of the negro longshoremen, who are on strike for an increase in pay and have demanded that the stevedores sign the scale proposed by the negroes.

PLANE CRUMPLES AND AVIATOR IS KILLED

MUNSTER, Germany, Sept. 12.—Aviator Hans Lorenz was killed here today as he was completing a two-hour flight. He steered the machine too steeply in a downward direction, and the wings buckled, the aircraft falling to the ground. The aviator tank exploded and the pilot was partly buried before the fire could be extinguished.

The Pure Milk Campaign.

"There are good dairies in Atlanta as well as bad ones, but we are determined that the bad dairies must go."

This declaration by the milk committee of the Chamber of Commerce, following a cordial response among all thinking citizens. No movement of the day is more vital; important to public health than that which seeks to establish sanitary methods in the production and marketing of the city's milk supply. "Impure milk is so grave a menace to health and life that no intelligent community will let it go unchallenged."

The campaign now being conducted by the Chamber of Commerce, with the valuable assistance of the State Department of Agriculture, is in line with kindred movements that have been undertaken and carried to success in scores of other American cities. It is just the sort of campaign which in other cities has led to a remarkable decrease in infant mortality and to remarkable improvements in the general health record.

Far from being in any wise hostile to legitimate dairy interests, this movement is distinctly advantageous to every dairyman who is honestly trying to produce clean, pure milk.

The Chamber committee is doing its work in a conservative manner, on scientific principles and solely in behalf of the people's welfare.

It deserves and will receive the public's earnest approval and co-operation.

"Money reform sure." Money always did seem to us to show a contrary disposition.

The "Flyless" City.

It is said that in Cleveland, O., a solitary fly is now the occasion of more excitement than great swarms would have been a few seasons ago. The city as a whole has come to regard flies with a curiosity as hostile as it is keen. The housewife would as soon think of stabling a wild mule in the street room as to permit a fly to perch in her kitchen, and shopkeepers who tolerate flies are looked upon as dangerously peculiar. Indeed, Cleveland has warned the rest of the "Flyless City."

What better name could a community win? It implies cleanliness, sanitation, progress and those assurances of comfort and health which after all are a town's prime asset. The remarkable achievement of Cleveland in this respect is due mainly to the fact, thinks the Cleveland Journal, that the people "went after the nuisance in the right way; they took time by the forelock and began a cleaning-up campaign early last spring before most other cities were thinking of anything of the sort." The Cleveland movement was successful not only because it was timely but also because it was genuinely popular and was well organized. Every source of fly propagation was probed and every available agency to educate and arouse the public, to the danger of flies was turned to account. The municipal authorities were aided by the individual citizen and by neighborhood groups.

"The school children," we are told, "were organized as junior sanitary police and the boys were assigned certain districts, making reports they covered at frequent intervals, making reports to the health officers of any unsanitary conditions found in their rounds. At the proper time a 'sanitation campaign' was waged with great success. A bounty of ten cents a hundred was paid and the army of swatters had turned in nearly half a million dead flies by May fifteenth. Preachers were asked to preach 'fly' sermons and many of them complied with the request. 'Fly' slides were shown at the moving picture theaters. One of the best results has been a public demand for flyless stores. Recently one hundred Normal School girls inspected five hundred and eleven groceries, restaurants and meat markets, and in sixty percent of these flies were found."

The Cleveland example is well worth the study and emulation of all cities. In every town which values sanitation and healthfulness, some effort is being made to eliminate flies, but in most of them the results would be speedier and more substantial if the carefully organized and far-reaching plans of Cleveland were adopted. Atlanta has made gratifying progress in this timely but important work since Council enacted an ordinance several seasons ago requiring all places where food is sold to be screened from early spring to the beginning of winter. This, together with the campaign for cleanliness inaugurated by women's clubs, and the inspection system of the health department, has greatly reduced the number of flies. Yet, there is still much room for improvement.

Gaynor, the Man.

Whatever may be thought of William J. Gaynor as mayor of New York, whether he be regarded as an apt follower of Machiavelli or as a wise, brave champion of good government, it will scarcely be denied that among all the leaders in the civic life of his time he stood forth as one of the ablest and most interesting. His enemies hated him bitterly but they never despised him. His saner critics found much to deplore or condemn in his latter record but they found also much to admire. Thousands believed in him almost as in a prophet and hundreds of thousands who were indifferent or even hostile to his political course came under the spell of his quaint and virile personality.

An interview of a speech from Mayor Gaynor was as different from the ordinary political utterance as the swift, sententious English of "Touchstone" is from the average "kilt" of vaudeville. "He keeps the people from being bored," said one of his sharpest critics, "by giving them racy anecdotes about John Calvin and racy extracts from Epictetus, when they expect him to read them nothing but rubber-stamp expressions and ideas." Into the salient of New York politics, he brought a certain indefinable freshness from the uplands of his farm, and a certain strange wisdom gathered in life-long company with wise old world-forgotten books. His letters written in the crush of official business on all manner of odd subjects to all manner of folk, are a treasury of humor and work-a-day philosophy so rare as to deserve a place beside Ben Franklin's own life-story.

This is the Mayor that will longest be remembered, the man who so pungently himself, who fought and governed, who erred and succeeded and lived all his days in a manner so distinctively his own that his end leaves with a sense of loss like that we feel upon parting with the characters of our most absorbing novels or plays.

The man who travels on a pass does the most kicking about the roughness of the road.

New York Politics Simplified.

The sudden death of Mayor Gaynor simplifies, yet, in a measure, complicates the political situation in New York City. Three tickets for the approaching municipal election were in the field, one of them headed by Edward F. McCall, Tammany's nominee, another by John Pursey Mitchell, candidate of the so-called Fusion movement which was organized to prevent the election of a mayor controlled by Boss Murphy and a third headed by Mayor Gaynor, who was the choice of an independent element opposed equally to the Democratic machine and the Fusionists.

It was expected that Mayor Gaynor would draw heavily from the strength of Mr. Mitchell, though his campaign for re-election was launched a few days chiefly on a basis of opposition to Tammany. Whether his followers will attempt to nominate another candidate in his place is as yet problematical, though it is hardly likely that they will do so, for they depended upon the Mayor's popularity and his fighting genius. That he would have received a considerable vote, if not a large or victorious one, was never doubted. The question of the hour is to whom this vote will now fall, whether to Tammany or to the anti-Tammany forces. The leaders of the Gaynor campaign can scarcely be reconciled to those of the Fusionist movement. Mr. Mitchell has attacked them unsparsingly and they have fought him in like manner.

It would seem, however, that the elimination of the third candidate, if no future entanglements develop, will result in the defeat of Tammany, an end which the great majority of good citizens in New York and the nation over-devoutly wish. In the last mayoralty election, the Tammany nominee, who then was Mayor Gaynor, received two hundred and fifty thousand votes and lost the election. Against him, there were polled more than three hundred and thirty thousand votes but these were divided between two candidates, so that the Tammany nominee was elected.

The present Fusion ticket represents an alliance among independent Democrats, "Progressives" and Republicans. If the issue is drawn squarely between them and the Murphy machine, without the intervention of a third candidate, the effort to overthrow Tammany will be relatively simple and have a fair prospect of success.

The Beauty of the Wheat

In all stages of its growth corn is beautiful, even in the earliest spring when our eyes are refreshed with its verdure, especially after a hard and prolonged winter. With what interest we watch its gradual development from, as it were, grassy blades, until it curls into the green ear in June, when the helios are still blossoming and the fields sparkle with flowers. The corn banters on to its perfection, waiting for the scorching sunshine which shall fully ripen it.

It is hard to say which is the most beautiful of the several varieties of the corn grown in the British Isles, but the wheat is an acknowledged favorite, especially in the yellow or tawny state. First of all, as you pass through the country, you notice a golden tint among the green spaces. This soon becomes more and more pronounced, until the yellow state is reached; the ears grow full and ripe, and they sway heavily to and fro in the breeze. If you look at the field at a distance, it has a full and tawny "respect, but as you come nearer and nearer the prevailing hue is more or less golden.

The wheat has a music of its own, it is different from any other grain. The ears are heavier, and the rustling is more sonorous and more deeply musical than the rustling of the other grains. The ears are heavier, and the rustling is more sonorous and more deeply musical than the rustling of the other grains. How Nature Gives Warning of Rain.

A writer in the Hamburger Nachrichten, who is evidently one of those rare and favored mortals who find "tongues in trees, books in the running brooks," thus charmingly summarizes the various signs of impending rain.

The idyllic calm of the hen runs gives place to a scene of great excitement, the fowls running about and waiting in the dust.

Peacocks give to their hard metallic cry expressions of a soul in anguish. Pigeons lose their comeliness of the line of the day and seem to be in doubt whether they ought not at once to seek the shelter of the dove.

Swallows give up their aerial circling and press down toward the earth in pursuit of the insects.

Other animals seem to know that the time of their yearly warmth is departing. In a corner of the field the cat stretches herself, while she rubs her fur with a paw as if she wanted to remove some invisible speck. The dog runs low and fast and merrily emerges from their dark corners.

Fishes are all about; their quiet reflectiveness gives place to a restless and greedy buzzing round every thing and every one. Bees either stop at home in the nest or come swarming in great numbers to the flowers, cease to be pacified and go out of their way to sting an unexpecting wanderer if they see a storm coming.

Spiders stop in the middle of their way to the web of their webs and hang dully and tiredly by their threads. So, too, with the humble bees in the den of the field. The bees, which were so busy and so full of life, now come out of their holes in troops. In the pond the water lilies nod and tremble, while those of the lily pads look like terrified gasps for breath, which gives it the appearance of a storm.

Even the plants reflect the coming bad weather; ferns fold up their fronds and straighten if colder weather is looming on the horizon. The wood sorrel lifts its leaves and folds them up, while those of the narcissus close up. The lettuce again opens its leaves before rain. So many and so varied are Nature's signs.—Kansas City Star.

Manners in Public Places

Occasionally one who is habitually considerate of others when at home or in the house of friends is forgotten in public places and forgets the consideration of the unfortunates that would shock even a militant English suffragette.

Women at a bargain sale in a department store are seen to snatch what lies nearest them, without others. At a library or a theater or a railway ticket window, instead of deference and consideration, certain redoubtless souls will push their way to the front with the air of conquering hosts and snare a policeman in the process of the notion of a place in line is disregarded. Some persons even are known to be so depraved as to plunder public flower beds or to jump the line at a picnic upon lawns and in places that once were beautiful to look upon.

If we have a true conception of our duty to our neighbors, if we have been schooled to any conception of thoughtfulness for others, the place to prove it is where other people are most numerous.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Ballad of Ifs and Buts

I might have been a millionaire
And led an autocratic life,
With power and wealth beyond compare,
(Had I not married me a wife)
(And I might be doing time
For leading a career of crime)

I might have been the president
And over all the land held sway,
Not a suburban resident
Whose got to labor under the grass of
In politics I might have risen
(But then, I might have gone to prison)

In certain of the sciences
I might have shone had I not wed,
Invented new appliances
Or found microbes that make men dead,
(I'm glad I didn't know,
The world is much too sickly now)

I might have been a dramatist
Or some such literary guy,
Who would be eternally famous
Wearing a most outrageous tie!
(But matrimony my light hid
(And I am rather sad it did).

The American Penal System

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1911, by Frank Crane.)

It is hard, it is almost impossible, for advocates of a change in custom or government to get out from under a charge which has worn down to a platitude. The average man refuses to think, when he can get his thinking ready-made.

For instance, we who believe that prisons and penitentiaries are wrong, are generally classed with the sentimental perverts who get criminals, with the women who dally with boys to murder, weep over the sad lot of burglars that have been justly laid by the heels, and want to feed them pie.

Allow me, therefore, to clearly state our point of view. We are not opposed to the present prison system because of pity for bad birds. We are sorry for them, as any human being is sorry to witness suffering but if their punishment were good for them or for society at large we would gladly applaud their stripes.

But our position is this: that the facts in the case prove beyond any reasonable doubt that the theory of punishment is the most important for good and fruitful of evil.

Why do we punish a thief or robber, for example? For three reasons only.

First, to protect the community against him. We incarcerate him, shave his head, put him at hard labor, isolate him, or even hang him, so that innocent citizens may be safe from his pernicious activities. Second, we punish him to "teach him a lesson," to change him and make him an honest man.

Third, it is also to give an example to other evildoers and by fear to dissuade them from crime. We send a man to the penitentiary does not result in any of these benefits.

As a rule, instead of prison changing him to an honest man, it makes him a more vicious man. It destroys the little good character he had.

And, as a rule, instead of his punishment deterring other criminals, it psychologically develops more criminals. Why, therefore, keep up a system that is proved by experience and reason to work precisely contrary to what we expected it to work?

It is a pleasure to note that the more intelligent of lawyers themselves are with us. At least they cannot be accused of maudlin sentimentality. At a meeting of the American Bar Association at Montreal at which Senator William H. Taft was chosen president, Mr. Moorfield Storey, of Massachusetts, declared the American penal system a failure.

"Our prisons are manufacturers of criminals, and it is time we changed our whole method of dealing with criminals," he said.

"All convicted persons should be turned over to a commission of experts, who should give them their care and custody under an indeterminate sentence, with authority to release them at such time and on such terms as would guarantee their future harmless-ness to society."

"In other words," he should treat criminals rather as sick men than as bad men, and our place of confinement as hospitals rather than as prisons."

"A Wild Disorder in the Dress"

The present styles in women's wear are undergoing more or less criticism, the ground of immodesty. But they have their defenders. Not all who are expressing opinions are in the same state of mind as Editor Bok, whose remarks were commented on the other day.

There are two grounds of difference with Mr. Bok. The question his dogmatism raises are, first, as to the extent of the so-called "indecent styles," second as to their "indecency."

The "style" he has in mind, evidently, are the "alt" skirt and the diaphanous gown. The extreme forms are comparatively rare, considering the total population, and common sense teaches that they will not increase any more than extreme forms of present styles did. Reading Mr. Bok leads one to believe that he fears the imminent adoption of nudity.

But Mr. Bok's position is challenged on other and more important grounds. For example, in an article on "Modesty in Women's Clothing" in Mr. Harpers' Weekly of August 30, Mr. Francis H. McCabe witnesses the tendency to attack as nearly correct as possible.

Mr. McCabe begins by attacking the assumption that the exposure of the body is in fact immodest, its concealment modest. He cites the different standards of modesty in different countries, instancing the custom of the Mohammedan women of concealing her face in the presence of men. Harpers' Weekly, in "Studies in the Psychology of Sex" declares that "there ought to be no question regarding the fact that it is the adorned, the partially concealed body, and not the absolutely naked body, which acts as a sexual stimulant" and various authorities are quoted. As modesty is not practicable, however, this leaves us at the mercy of Mr. Bok, who would maintain that parva reformation in the practice of dress is the present style.

The reply to this is, of course, that the actual effect of concealment or revelation depends upon custom. Change produce effect, because of their novelty, and as the novelty fades the effect will fade.

The classic case of the London woman need hardly be cited to prove the truth of this. The sight of the body in itself immoral, then the avoidance of women would be necessary to morality. But if custom is the variable, it is hardly intelligible to obstruct a tendency which is essentially wholesome because of temporary effects.

It is the whole question, Mr. McCabe says. "The sentiment which tends to prevent women from allowing men to see their bodies, or to state of nudity, or to show the lines of their forms, causes women to wear clothing which is uncomfortable, inconvenient, and even, in their movements, unnecessarily expensive, injurious to health, and dangerous to life in various ways."

Northwestern University Medical college, says: "No wonder her circulation is poor; no wonder she is unable to stand any exercise or exertion to amount to anything. The upper garments are usually loose, and, according to the capricious of fashion, may not cover the arms, neck and upper part of the bust. A profusion of skirts are worn, and the lower extremities of the body, and the feet are held in visible grip of thin, light, covering which resemble stills more than shoes."

In strange contrast to such inadequate protection of the upper and lower extremities, the waist and hips are swathed and compressed in a "corset" case of whalebone, corset, belt, and the hands of the various under and outer garments worn by the women of today.

Mr. Havock Ellis declares that "the free control of the body, the power and light makes for the health of the body, familiarity with the sight of the body abolishes petty pruderies, trains the sense to regard the body as the health of the soul."

The tendency of women to do away with physically unwholesome awdardings is moral in the best sense and certainly should not be discouraged because some men are prurient or conventionally prudish.—Chicago Tribune.

Quips and Quiddities

"See here, Rastus," said the new arrival at the hotel, "do you mean to tell me that this egg is fresh?"

"It was, certainly," replied the waiter. "And when was that, pray?" demanded the guest. "Ah, when the egg was laid, Rastus. It was laid in the first season at this very hotel, and, therefore, it can't tell."

It was at a reception, and the lady who had been reading up on health topics mistook Lawyer Williams for his brother-in-law. "How do you do?" she asked him.

"It is better," she asked confidently, "to lie on the right side or the left?"

"Madam," replied the lawyer, "if one is on the right side it often isn't necessary to lie at all."

The artist's lady friend was being shown round the studio.

"Oh, perfect!" she exclaimed, looking at a picture: "these sketches are simply superb. You should never paint anything but birds."

"These are not sketches," he said, "they are sketches."

During some army maneuvers two officers of the royal artillery were disputing about the classification of a tree. One said it was a birch tree and the other an oak tree. They could not agree, so they called a gunner who was sitting near by, and asked him if he could tell them what kind of tree it was.

The gunner looked up and down the tree, walked all around it, drew his sword and began cutting it. The officers asked him what he meant by this behavior when he looked up at them and answered: "I am trying to discover what kind of tree it is."

Inspecting the gash he had made, with the air of a game the gunner at length delivered his long-sought verdict: "It's a wooden one, sir."

When a country doctor in Maryland arrived at a certain town he found the man in a somewhat peculiar condition, a circumstance that prevented several hours of restorative labor.

"I am trying to discover what kind of tree it is," the doctor said. "You are a doctor, are you not?"

"Yes, sir," responded the fearful wife.

"As much as would go on a dime and no more?"

"Yes, sir," replied the doctor.

"We couldn't find him, so I took a nickel and five cents out of Billy's bag and gave him just what he would cure."

Mr. Allen's new servant came to her the morning after her arrival and said:

"I'm going to have you, mum, today. I'll not stay any longer."

"Going to leave?" cried Mrs. Allen in amazement.

"To leave in the way you are going to leave me no more."

"What do you mean, the girl? When I came yesterday morning you gave me the keys to your trunk and drawers and said, 'You are to have them, and you are to have them for me.'"

"Yes, yes, as I did," said the mistress; "that's what I trusted you. What is the matter?"

"Well, yes, mum, said the servant, 'they don't open 'em for me.'"

PORTER CHARLTON

JAILED IN ITALY

Trial of Young American May Go Over to April-May Plead Insanity

(By Associated Press.)
ROME, Italy, Sept. 12.—Dr. Sala, part of whose office consists of a visit to the prison in the Campi Marci every two days, said that the trial of Porter Charlton, charged with the murder of a woman, would be necessary to a further examination of the case. He said that the trial would be a further examination of the case, and that the trial would be a further examination of the case.

Charlton, a United States citizen, was charged with the murder of a woman, and the trial would be a further examination of the case.

FOR BRAIN FAS
Charlton's condition, impaired by a brain fever, is the cause of the trial.

SHE IS "THE MERRY COUNTESS"

MISS MADEA BAKER.
Who appears in the Atlanta Theatre Friday and Saturday.

entertaining play that has been put on by the Jewell Kelley company, and which has been the rule of the week. "My Dixie Girl" will hold the stage of the Bijou for the balance of the week, with matinee every afternoon at 2:30, and evening performances at 8:30. For next week, the management announces a big sensational melodrama, "The Man of Mystery." Mark Swann's thrilling detective story dealing with the operations of a notorious band of

New York thieves that baffled the detective force of the great city for many years, until Ned Keene, the famous detective known as "Lueker" on the force, was put on the trail of the gang, and finally drove them from their den, "The Devil's Kitchen," in an out-of-the-way shack on the East river. The play is brimful of stirring and sensational incidents and should make one of the best attractions that the Jewell Kelley company has in its repertoire.

Next week's bill promises to be the best in every respect of the offering now on. Ida Brooks Hunt and her company, all late of "The Chocolate Soldier" company, will present an operetta, "The Shining Countess," and a selected company will offer "How Morfmeister Did It." A feature will be the appearance of the Bill "City Four," probably the most popular singing quartet yet seen in Atlanta, and Madame Benson and her company present "The Woman Who Knew," the most interesting sketch in modern vaudeville.

One of the best attractions to be seen here this season is due here next week at the Lyric theatre, when Arthur G. Jones, excellent company, headed by Kate Williams and Edwin Walter, will be seen in Owen Davis' latest success, "A Man of Mystery."

The play is said to possess not only a plot, that places, but a strong element of ability to truly portray the exciting character of "Nance Mayo," assuming by Miss Williams.

There will be just three more opportunities to witness the remarkably clever play, "The Call of the Heart," this week of the Lyric. For the thinking and intelligent, thought-provoking, and those who would rather see a good play than a "cheap" one, this is a chance to see a play that is a masterpiece of the art.

Patrons of the Bijou have voted this week's play, "My Dixie Girl," the most

BOESCHENSTEIN SEES

PROGRESS ERA AHEAD

National Democratic Committeeman Marvels at Atlanta's Growth Since Last Visit

Charles Boeschstein, national Democratic committeeman from Illinois, and probable candidate for the United States senate next year to succeed Republican Senator Sherman, of that state, was a visitor to Atlanta Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Boeschstein came south to enter their daughter at Wesleyan college, Gainesville. The young lady is a talented musician and has become a pupil in the Bremen conservatory, which Mr. Boeschstein says he has found, after careful investigation, to be one of the foremost institutions of its kind in the United States.

Mr. Boeschstein declares that President Wilson's administration has made good with a rush and that as a result the Democratic party has taken on added strength throughout the country. He predicts that the passage of the tariff and currency bills will speedily bring about a prosperous business era.

Not since 1888 has Mr. Boeschstein visited the south. He marvels at the wonderful development and growth of this section and especially was he impressed with the progress which has been made by the city of Atlanta.

While in Atlanta, Mr. Boeschstein was a guest of Clark Howell, national committeeman from Georgia, and Governor House.

House Burglarized
Sam Hawkins, of 11 Orme street, has reported to the police that his house was burglarized Thursday afternoon, getting a watch, some loose money, and some money from the gas meter.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR
FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Your hair gets soft, fluffy and luxuriant at once.

If you care for heavy hair, that glitters with beauty and is radiant with life, has an innumerable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Dandruff. Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have dandruff, healthy hair cannot have dandruff. It is the hair's strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots fall out, and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy, or too oily, get a 10-cent Dandruff bottle. Dandruff at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Dandruff. It eventually why not now?

Tango Sashes

Are the Very Newest Things in Fashion

—partly because they give that pretty, supple, awaying look to the waist line.

at 75c—A Tango sash 4 inches wide with red or blue checks on black ground.

at 81.25—gold threads on green, blue or black. 6 inches wide.

at 82.50—all-silk white girle with dashing Roman stripes.

at 82.50—all-silk white girle in navy or greenish green and crossed with dashing plaids.

Nearly all are 2 1/2 yards long. And the way they "crush up," and are knotted or trimmed with long fringe, is very graceful.

WITNESSES ON SULZER CASE ARE EXAMINED

Assembly Managers for Impeachment Trial Sit as Committee of Legislature

(By Associated Press.) NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Sitting as a committee of the legislature, the assembly managers for the impeachment of Governor Sulzer examined at the trial today certain witnesses under subpoena to appear at the trial of the governor, beginning September 18. "There are a number of witnesses," explained Judge Keady, counsel for the committee, "who have refused to give any evidence. Therefore, we have summoned them here in public for the purpose of forcing their testimony out of them. We are sitting as a legislative committee, the powers of which were conferred upon us by the resolution creating the board of impeachment managers."

DID SECRETARY WILSON ORDER MINERS' STRIKE?

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—In support of their attempt to show an unlawful conspiracy between the United Mine Workers and coal operators of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and West Virginia, operators today brought in the name of William R. Wilson, secretary of labor. In 1912, Wilson was national secretary of the United Mine Workers, D. C. Kennedy, now secretary of the Kentucky Coal association, testified that Wilson in that capacity at a miners' meeting in Huntington ordered a strike in West Virginia, Feb. 1912.

DON'T BURN YOUR LIVER

Take Ea-Tone, The Great Vegetable Liver Laxative and Tonic

Don't burn your liver with deadly mineral medicines, that force unnatural action and abnormal stimulation for a short time, the reaction of which is harmful and dangerous. Take a remedy from nature's garden, a purely vegetable compound—Ea-Tone, the great liver laxative and tonic. It gently, and in nature's own way, stimulates the liver, to healthy action, turns off bile, purifies the juices and excretions of their poisonous folds, takes impurities out of the blood, does not over tax heart action, removes pallor and blotch from the skin, puts rich, red blood in the veins, establishes normal appetite, diet, your liver, fast and 95 per cent of the ill pains and discomforts of life vanish. The liver is the fountain head of the organic system—If polluted, the entire system suffers. If treated with harsh remedies it becomes calloused and inactive. Take Ea-Tone, the world's great vegetable compound—scientific, perfectly harmless and absolutely guaranteed liver laxative and tonic. Large bottles 25¢ everywhere, or address Ea-Tone Medicine Company, 1 Hill St., Atlanta, Ga. (Advt.)

A. B. & A. SALE HELD UP UNTIL OCTOBER 7

Lack of Data Delayed Matters—Hearing Held Before Special Master

Because certain data were lacking, the proceedings leading up to the foreclosure sale of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad under Judge Parker's orders from United States court, have been held up until October 7, by which date it is expected that the auditor's department will have furnished them.

For two days past the matter has been in hearing before Special Master V. L. Smith, appointed to conduct the sale, as to what proportion of the $5,000,000 indebtedness accounted by the receivers should be distributed among the three properties of the road—the railroad proper, the Georgia Terminal company and the Alabama Terminal company. Attorneys for the Old Colony trust company of Boston, representing the holders of the receivers' certificates, attended the hearing.

BEACON SHOES

a step in advance

Over two million men have worn Beacon shoes in the last year. Satisfaction to a million and a half the year before who found advanced styles and long wear combined with old fashioned custom shoe comfort. Does this mean anything to you? If you have never worn Beacons why not try them next time. 3400 dealers sell them.
